

CE Marking

Virtually all products made in, or entering, the European Union market, are required to be CE Marked under the CE Marking Directive 93/68/EEC. The CE mark is the manufacturer's self declaration that any given product conforms to all the relevant EU Directives applicable to its manufacture and function.

All lamps are subject to at least one of the Directives identified above and must, therefore, be CE marked. As a result for each lamp it is required that its manufacturer holds a Declaration of Conformity and a Technical File that demonstrates compliance with all the relevant directives and the applicable harmonised standards.

SOURCE: The LIA Light SOURCE Guide - LIA Copyright © 2017. All information stated within this document is correct at time of publication – Jan 2017.